

Manifesto for Sustainable Experimentation 21 May-9 August 2025

The Charmers

Gig

Thursday 3 July 2025

19.30

Beaconsfield Arch Space

Doors open from 18.30

Performance at 19.30

Tickets: Donations from £1+ pay what you can afford

Book on Eventbrite

The Charmers are a (possibly fictional) band, formed by seven accused 'witches' from Ayrshire. These queer, runaway, time-travelling-players were discovered on a 17th century scroll by an artist, Anne Robinson, investigating the Scottish witch trials. As part of Manifesto for Sustainable Experimentation, The Charmers are on tour with Debbie Armour (Burd Ellen, described by The Wire as one of 'our finest folk explorers') on vocals and shruti, Debbie Smith (of Curve and Echobelly fame) on electric guitars, artist Tansy Spinks electric violin, Lisa Lux (The Priscillas) percussion/drums, and Anne Robinson, vocals and visuals.

This band of time-travelling witches known as The Charmers contribute to Beaconsfield's Manifesto for Sustainable Experimentation by playing a gig for one night only on Thursday 3 July within an installation that includes works by BAW, David Burrows, Luana Duvoisin Zanchi and Trevor Mathison; in the Arch space.

The Charmers art project considers the 'witch' trials then and now and themes of queer banishment and othering: drawing on archival research into the 16th and 17th century Scottish trials, known to be amongst the most brutal in the world. During investigations, Anne found scrolls recording seven accused 'witches' in Ayrshire, as 'not to be found' - apparently fugitives. From these fragments, using 'critical fabulation' and experimenting with songs, film, and performance, the work developed around a 'sci-fi folk ballad' and time-travel through queer history. The accused 'witches' abscond using the very conjuring they are accused of – transported away out of their cells to form a band, on tour with their familiars to historical moments of transformative rebellion - levellers' meetings, molly houses, cabaret, disco protests... Coming soon... The Charmers! is an art project in diverse forms: films, drawings, sound, broadside ballads, workshops and conversations.

The 4 track EP 'Not to be Found' is available via Bandcamp in vinyl and digital formats, also featuring Jo Gate-Eastley and Maggie Nicols.

Website: gracenotesproject.org

Anne Robinson

Manifesto for Sustainable Experimentation 21 May-9 August 2025

Instagram: @anrobs

The Charmers are supported by a National Lottery Project Grant from Arts Council England.

With thanks to: Space Art, Middlesex University, Dimple Discs, Beaconsfield Contemporary Art, Narture, Fruitmarket, Ayrshire Archives, Cutty Sark Centre, Brian O'Neill, Karina Townsend, Nic Howaintz, Limpe Fuchs, Helen Spackman, Loussin Torah-Pilikia, Charlie Wood, Rachel Gomme, Edwin Mingard, Phoebe Dyer, Lisa Gornick, Queer Materialities GSoA, Triangle Centre.

